Follow-Up Care

- Should I see any additional health care professionals who can help me manage my weight?
- Is there anything I should be doing differently to manage my chronic health conditions?
- How often should I make appointments for follow-up weight management visits with you?

Questions to Ask Your Insurance Provider About Obesity Medication and Obesity Surgery

- Does my policy cover obesity medication/obesity surgery?
- What are my copays or deductibles for these treatments?
- If I have a yearly deductible, when does it reset each year? (Note: Deductibles do not necessarily reset each January.)
- What guidelines or requirements apply in order for my treatment to be covered?
- Are specific types of medication or surgery covered/not covered?
- Must I meet certain medical requirements to have my treatment covered? Must I have certain obesity-related health conditions or a minimum body mass index?
- If coverage is available only for “medically necessary” obesity treatment, what are the guidelines for “medical necessity”?
- If the treatment my health care professional recommends is not covered, is there an alternative treatment that is covered?
- Are there any steps I must take before being considered for coverage? (For example, an insurer may require you to attempt to lose weight for a certain period of time with a medically supervised weight-loss program before covering medication or surgery.)
- Must I see an approved or in-network health care professional in order for my treatment to be covered? If so, where can I find a list of approved/in-network providers?
- If I have more than one type of health insurance, how is coverage handled?
- Must I get preauthorization before treatment?
- If preauthorization is required, how do I go about getting it? What information or documentation is required? How long does it take to receive preauthorization?
- If I take obesity medication, is there a limit on how long it will be covered?
- Can I save money by filling an obesity medication prescription at a specific pharmacy?
- If I have obesity surgery, will every part of the procedure be covered? What will not be covered?
